

Justin Thomsen earns CITP credential

9:00 PM, Jul. 8, 2011 | Comments

A A

FILED UNDER

Business
People On The Move

Justin Thomsen, CPA and senior associate at Muckel Anderson CPAs, has earned a Certified Information Technology Professional credential from the American Institute of CPAs.

Thomsen is one of six CPAs in Nevada to earn the designation, as listed on the CITP Credential Holder Directory, and one of 1,450 CPAs that hold the CITP credential nationwide.

As a CITP, Thomsen is skilled in the areas of business and information technology services to serve clients' business needs, including risk assessment, fraud, information security, internal controls, information management and business process improvement.

Provided to the Reno Gazette-Journal

MORE HEADLINES

- People on the move: Michael Patmas
- Sharp is trial lawyer of year
- People You Should Know: Brent Stutchman

MOST POPULAR

1. Cop: 'Melrose' actress giggled after fatal crash
2. Police: California woman cut off husband's penis
3. Santa Rosa girl dies at sleepover after drinking spiked soda
4. Man faces fireworks charge in blaze by Carson City
5. Pete Ermaut: Northern Nevada's power broker

Jemima Puddle-Duck

Death Ride 2011

Death Ride - Tour of California Alps

MOST COMMENTED

- Obama challenges GOP to compromise on debt 105
- Nation can't get out of debt by spending more 47
- Home is place to live, not a personal asset 45
- 15 illegal immigrants stranded on Calif. island 38
- Truckee man arrested for fleeing after bicyclist runs red light, collides with his vehicle 35

View Comments | Share your thoughts »